Hill of Columbia University; first vice president, Miss Alice O'Grady of the Chicago Normal school; second vice president, Miss Clara Wheeler of Grand Rapids, Mich.; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Miss Anna H. BENEFIT GIVEN FOR BILLIARD "WIZARD"

Performances Given in Large Cities And Books Are Being Sold to Allow Schaefer to Retire.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Chicago, Ill., April 20.—The world of sport has responded promptly and generously to the appeal sent out in behalf of Jake Schaefer, the "Wizard of Billiards," who has been compelled to retire from active life on account of failing health. In Chicago, New York, Boston and other large cities throughout the country performances of various kinds are to be given tonight, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the relieving the distress that has overtaken the veteran cue wielder. In billiard rooms, hotels and clubs everywhere a "Schaefer souvenir booklet" has been placed on sale for the benefit of the fund.

Few men are better known in the world of sport than Schaefer, and none enjoys a wider popularity. No man has done more for billiards than he. He has traveled more to meet opponents, and none have eclipsed him in the mastery of the gentleman's game.

Schaefer was born in Milwaukee fifty-four years ago. At 14, while living in Leavenworth, Kan., he was the champion billiardist of the town. His public debut was at Indianapolis in 1873, and his first match with George Slosson was also played in 1873. In 1878, Schaefer made his debut in the east. His first tournament appearance was in Tammany hall, in November, 1878. Three years later, in New York, Schaefer won the world's championship in a tournament with Slosson, Sexton, Gardner and other famous masters. In the years that followed he displayed his skill in many parts of the world and defeated the best players of America and Europe.

His last great match was played in Paris with Cure for the 181 building championship. Though in poor health at the time and apparently hopelessly beaten he came on at the finish with great speed, running the game out with the record run of 155.

Since then his health has been gradually failing and though he has appeared in several championship matches, generally more than holding his own, the burdens of the disease has sapped his strength until today he is little more than a shadow of his former self. For the past year he has made his home in Denver.

BANKERS AGAINST EXPRESS COMPANIES

III Feeling Between Two Shown at Hearing Before Interstate Commerce Commission Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

WILL STEEL TRUST PASS THE DIVIDEND?

Is Question For Which an Answer is Eagerly Sought in Wall Street.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, April 20.—Will the directors of the United States Steel Corporation at their meeting tomorrow decide to pass the quarterly dividend on the common stock of that gigantic corporation? This is the question that is being asked in Wall Street today. So representative of the general state of the business of the country is the business of the United States Steel Corporation, and so great is the army of the holders of its securities, that any development affecting the standing of the steel stocks is of the greatest interest to the country at large. That the passing of the two per cent dividend would be followed by general reductions on the part of other companies is regarded as likely enough—for which reason the meeting of the Steel directors tomorrow is looked forward to eagerly by the holders of all kinds of industrial common stocks.

Estimates of the net earnings of the United States Steel Corporation for the first quarter of the year vary all the way from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, with Pittsburgh claiming that the former figure is more apt to be right than the latter. In the last quarter of 1908, interesting and sinking fund requirements and the preferred and common dividends amounted to $16,100,000, and in addition, "sinking fund, depreciation and reserve" items were $2,214,000, a total of $18,314,000. So that unless the highest estimates are exceeded, or the amount charged off greatly reduced, the common dividend hardly will have been earned during the past quarter.

In view of the fact that the company's big surplus has been accumulated against just such a time as this, the fact that the dividends in the common stock may not have been earned in the last quarter by no means proves that nothing will be paid. Stability of dividends as well as of prices has become the fixed policy of the United States Steel Corporation during the past few years, and in 1906 and 1907 when the two per cent dividend was not raised, "That was the time of surplus accumulation, and the large fund then put in the treasury is now available to keep up dividends when earnings are poor."

With the big surplus on hand out of which the quarter's common stock dividend requirement of $2,550,000 could be taken, the action of the directors at tomorrow's meeting will be governed more by the general outlook than by current conditions. For the second quarter on known orders is not bright, but decided improvement is expected when once the tariff is settled and manufacturers know where they stand.

SUFFRAGETTES TO INVADE CAPITAL

Some of the Champions of Woman's Rights Are Already in Madison Lobbying for the Stout Bill.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., April 20.—Militant suffragettes from Wisconsin may yet emulate their Illinois sisters and descend upon the Badger legislature with a battery of arguments for "votes for women." The bill introduced by Senator J. H. Stout and passed by the senate last week will be on the calendar of the assembly early this week, recommended by the committee on cities for indefinite postponement, but there will be a warm fight whose result may not now be predicted.

The Stout bill does not provide for immediate suffrage for women, but requires that the proposition be submitted to the voters of the state for ratification. Even this is opposed by the majority of the assembly committee, while the bill will receive no heartiest support from Wisconsin's Twosome and League, both of whom dissent from the committee report. Assemblyman Ingalls comes from Racine, the hotbed of woman's suffrage propaganda in the state and the home of Rev. Olympia Brown, the well known universalist woman preacher and advocate of votes for the fair sex. Assemblyman Kamper, who hails from the Racine country district, is expected to support the measure with a speech and there is a feeling that the committee report may be overruled and the bill sent to the people, as it is believed the governor would approve it.

Mrs. Wilfred von Brunsen, a noted suffrage advocate from Watrous, a suburb of Milwaukee, is in the city and has spent much time among the legislators, urging them to support the bill. She has been active in the distribution of the suffrage literature and she has the co-operation of "In Absentia"—of other noted women about the state who have bombarded the members with letters.

On the other hand, the opponents of suffrage have not been inactive. A large quantity of circular matter, such as "Why Home-Makers Do Not Want to Vote," "The Anti-Suffrage Movement," and various clippings from newspapers are being distributed broadcast, most of them bearing the stamp of the "Illinois Association Opposed to the Extension of Suffrage to Women," with headquarters in Chicago.

MAYOR DAVE ROSE IN SECOND DEBATE

Will Again Argue Prohibition Question With Dr. Samuel Dickle at Chicago Friday Night.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., April 20.—Details have been arranged for the second in the series of three great debates on the prohibition question between Mayor David S. Rose of this city, Dr. Samuel Dickle of Albion college, the accredited representative of the national prohibition party, and Dr. Samuel Dickle of Albion college, the accredited representative of the national prohibition party. The debate will be held at Orchestra hall, Chicago, Friday night, April 23, and the interest that the Milwaukee debate aroused in every part of the country promises to be even greater on this occasion. The Milwaukee debate in March, 1908, was a brilliant one, and Milwaukee by the prohibitionist speaker, and Mayor Rose is in an ardent endeavor of the Milwaukee situation, it is probable that the fur will fly in earnest at the coming debate. The question will be the same as debated at Milwaukee: "Resolved that prohibition as applied to the manufacture, sale and use of intoxicating liquor is right," but there will be a slight change in the speaking arrangement.

Dr. Dickle will lead for an hour. Mayor Rose will follow for an hour. Dr. Dickle will have half an hour for rebuttal and Mayor Rose will close with the same time for rebuttal. The seating arrangement will be the same as during the Milwaukee debate. The two speakers will pay the cost of the debate; each will be allotted one hundred tickets, and the entire balance of the seating capacity of Orchestra hall will be turned over to various Chicago business and commercial organizations, in proportion to their registered membership.

At Milwaukee there were nearly 4,000 persons in attendance, and the Chicago debate promises to attract even greater attention. Those debates have been compared to the historic debates on slavery between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas, inasmuch as they are between the accredited national representatives of the "wets" and "drys" of the entire country.

SOLONS FACE BUSY WEEK

Seven Propositions Involving Proposed Radical Changes in State Policy to Be Considered.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., April 20.—The Wisconsin railroad commission has directed its staff of engineers to make a valuation of the physical property of the New Gas Light Co. of Janesville, preparatory to basing upon the rates charged by that concern.

Seven Big Questions.
Seven important propositions which if enacted into law might radically change the policy of the state, come before the legislature this week for consideration. A contest will be made for each bill to secure its passage if possible. It is doubtful if so many important measures have been placed on the calendar for consideration within so brief a time within the state's legislative history. The measures are concerned with:
Power of the people to recall elective municipal officers.
A first and second choice (Mary Ann) of candidates in all primaries.
Woman's suffrage.
Closed season for all aquatic fowls until Sept. 1, 1912.
Commission form of municipal government for cities of the second, third and fourth class.
Granting of dam franchises.
Manufacture of binder twine by the state at the prison at Waupun.

The Recall Bill.
The recall bill will make a special order in the assembly for Wednesday of this week at the request of Assemblyman Ingram. When the measure came before the assembly last week, Assemblyman Buscher started to make a speech in favor of the measure. He said the recall had worked successfully in Switzerland and in many of the western states. But it was evident that there would be opposition, so the matter was laid over. Upon a petition of twenty-five per cent of the voters, the question of recalling an official must be submitted to the people, according to the bill.

"Mary Ann" Idea.
The "Mary Ann" idea of a first and second choice in all primaries, as urged in the McConnell bill, has been before legislatures of this state since the special session of 1903. The new feature is that Assemblyman McConnell proposes to submit the question to a vote of the people.
Votes for Suffrage.
Several Assemblymen will make a fight to get the woman's suffrage bill passed. The Stout bill passed the assembly some time ago, but came into the assembly last week unfavorably recommended. Assemblyman J. H. Kamper of Racine will be the principal sponsor for the bill.
Closed Season for Birds.
The question of a closed season for aquatic fowls until 1912 is creating considerable discussion. Many opposed the spring shooting bill said they would favor such a law and it is believed there is sufficient sentiment in the house to pass the bill. The outcome of such a bill in the senate is doubtful.

Rule by Commission.
The bill for the commission form of government of all cities in the state outside of Milwaukee has passed the senate and the plan is to bring it before the assembly this week. The measure provides for a governing body of five members, who shall not be both administrative and legislative capacities. It is optional with the cities to try the plan for six years.
Dams and Prison Labor.
There are two bills before the assembly to grant franchises for building dams. Senator Gaylord contends that the state is giving away valuable rights thereby and asks that the disposal of the measure be referred to the special session next January, when a general dam act will be considered.

Bill to Manufacture Binder Twine by Prison Labor.
After the state has expended $200,000 in erecting a building, may be killed. There is strong opposition in both houses. Senator Thomas is leading the fight in favor of the measure. Aside from these important measures the question of referring to the people the bill to compel physical connections between telephones will be before the assembly this week.

Electric Suction Sweeper

as the name implies, is a combined sweeper and vacuum cleaner, and is designed to supersede both the old fashioned broom and the new compressed air or vacuum cleaner, in that it combines the good points of both, without their deficiencies.

The machine does all the work—all the operator has to do is to guide it, and it is so easily handled that a child can run it. Absorbs all the dust with the dirt, so that no after dusting is necessary. In fact we recommend that dusting, if any, be done prior to the sweeping.

By attaching blower attachment to the rear of machine, all the air pressure created by the strong fan motor can be forced through pillows, mattresses, bedding, etc., thereby thoroughly renovating same and bringing them back to life.

By using the nozzle, dirt and dust lodged in the tufts of upholstered furniture can readily be removed.

Other attachments are used to remove dirt from under heavy or stationary articles, also from any elevated objects, such as pictures, mouldings, wall coverings, upholstered furniture.

We will demonstrate machine, if you are interested, at your own home.

MADISON WANTS TO NAVIGATE THE ROCK

John C. McKenna, Secretary of the Yahara Dredging Association, Talks About the Project.

John C. McKenna, who arrived here on an automobile trip from the state capital today, is secretary of the Yahara Dredging association which has been organized by Madison people to push the project of converting the Rock river and its tributaries into a system of deep waterways.

"Just to show the government we are in earnest, we are going to raise $10,000 for the work of deepening the Rock," says Mr. McKenna. "Two Catfish," says Mr. McKenna, "thousand has already been subscribed and there is no doubt about the balance. The Park and Pleasure Drive association takes with a lock that cost $300,000 and everybody up our way is enthusiastic about opening a water-course for good sized boats clear to the Mississippi. Capt. Wheeler, the government's district engineer, is expected in Madison this week to look over the ground." Mr. McKenna expressed considerable surprise when he learned that Janesville people had formed no similar organization for promoting the good thing the line ought to get into the canal and co-operate with its neighbors in advancing the big and, industrially, the most important proposition that has ever come up for consideration.

Whether Mr. McKenna is known only to the Madison people, or whether he is known to the Janesville people, is not certain. But this much is certain: McKenna, even after the suicide of his business partner, was stricken with mental depression, perhaps brain fever, and a commission of doctors, with Abdul Hamid's physician, declared that he was still living, the lawful sovereign of Turkey, commander of the faithful, caliph of Islam, in the marble dungeon of the Cheragan palace, and no Mohammedan boatman will willingly approach the forbidden ground on which the Cheragan stands on a cliff above the Bosphorus.

Three of the principals in Turkish revolution.

Abdul Hamid II, the deposed sultan, at left. Richard Effendi, probable successor to the sultan, at upper right. Below is Sheikh-ul-Islam, head of the church, who proclaims changes in rulers to the people.

To say the story of Abdul Hamid reads like a romance is to do it injustice. From his infancy he inspired fear and repulsion, and we are told that his father gave orders that the child should never be brought to him in the morning lest he might cast ill luck over the whole day.

He was, it is said, the son of an Armenian slave girl who renounced Christianity for Islam and danced her way into the harem of Abdul Mejid. That wild and liberal ruler was succeeded by the wild and tempestuous Abdul Aziz, whose mutual frenzies forced his ministers to depose him. He ended his life a few days later by opening his veins with scissors.

Abdul Mejid, the liberal minded reformer, left an older son, Murad, of legitimate birth and in many ways resembling his father. Murad V. was raised to the throne made vacant by the deposition of Abdul Aziz at the end of May, 1876. Three months later he himself was removed from the throne, and a pull of mystery descended upon him which has never been raised.

Hundred-tongued rumor declares that he still lives, the lawful sovereign of Turkey, commander of the faithful, caliph of Islam, in the marble dungeon of the Cheragan palace, and no Mohammedan boatman will willingly approach the forbidden ground on which the Cheragan stands on a cliff above the Bosphorus.

Whether Murad V. lives is known only to Abdul Hamid, the younger brother, who succeeded to the throne. But this much is certain: Murad, even after the suicide of his business partner, was stricken with mental depression, perhaps brain fever, and a commission of doctors, with Abdul Hamid's physician, declared that he was still living, the lawful sovereign of Turkey, commander of the faithful, caliph of Islam, in the marble dungeon of the Cheragan palace, and no Mohammedan boatman will willingly approach the forbidden ground on which the Cheragan stands on a cliff above the Bosphorus.

IDENTIFIED AS

J. J. McCANN

WOMAN DECLARES J. C. MAYBRAY IS "LORD" BARRINGTON'S VICTIM.

ST. LOUIS TRAGEDY RECALLED.

Prisoner in Des Moines Jail Charged with Swindling Identified by Mrs. Lillian Gates as J. J. McCann Long Believed Dead.

Des Moines, Ia., Apr. 26.—Identified as J. J. McCann, the St. Louis horseman, whom "Lord" Barrington was convicted of murdering, J. C. Maybray, prisoner in the jail here on a charge of swindling many persons on fake foot races, has bared his past life to prove that Mrs. Lillian Gates is mistaken in her identification.

Maybray declared that he was born in Mississippi, went west when young and rode his plains as a cowboy with Mayor Jim Dahlman of Omaha. He told of running a rooming house in Omaha during the exposition and of his removal to Kansas City about 1900, where, he says, is his home.

Maybray Produces Alibi.
McCann was slain in St. Louis county, Mo., ten miles from St. Louis, in June, 1903. Maybray declares he was in Chicago in the May preceding that month and returned to Kansas City the entire month of June, he says, and his wife who was beside him during the narrative corroborated the statement. In July he says, he went to Denver, where he was taken ill and for weeks was near death.

He returned to Kansas City late in the summer and declares all he knows of the Barrington case is what he recalls from newspaper accounts at that time.

"Mrs. Gates is insane," said Maybray. "When she came up here, I begged her to look me over and because of the notoriety that I have acquired hereofore, to spare me and my wife any further humiliation. She told me that I would have to change my eyes before she would ever say that I am not McCann. Her story that I have scars on my thumbs is false.

Says She Failed Once.
Maybray talked for an hour, declared that Mrs. Gates and a post office inspector named Swenson were working in the attempt to make him out the murdered McCann, and said they tried it at Little Rock, and there identified an altogether different man.

"If Lord Barrington is innocent, I am willing to help him get his liberty if I can. I have no wish to see him suffer whoever he is," said Maybray. Maybray points out that while J. L. Rollins, the sailor from the battleship Wisconsin, identified him, the sailor who shook as if he were scared to death.

"It was lying," says Maybray. Mrs. Lillian Gates is firm in her belief that Maybray is McCann. She says she is not in the employ of the British government but that her father and "Lord" Barrington Seymour, father of the Missouri convict, were old neighbors and that she and "Lord" Barrington were childhood friends in England. She says the corpse which was found and identified as McCann was in reality the decayed trunk of a tree.

Enumerates Identification Points.
She enumerates the points upon which she bases her identification. At first glance she recognized in Maybray the man for whom she has been searching for years; on seeing her, Maybray pleaded with her to give him consideration.

J. L. Rollins, who knew Barrington and McCann and was with them on the night preceding McCann's disappearance, identified Maybray as McCann as soon as he saw the prisoner in the Polk county jail.

THE SULTAN'S FOES HAVE WON

YILDIZ GARRISON SURRENDERS
AFTER TWO DAYS OF FIGHTING.

CONSTANTINOPLE IS INVADIED

Constitutionalist Forces and Ruler's
Army Engage in Bloody Battle in Capital Streets—Many Slain and Wounded—Massacre Victims 25,000.

London, Apr. 26.—The Daily Telegraph's Vienna correspondent sends the report that the sultan was taken out of the palace by force early this morning and that Mehmed Reschad Effendi was installed in his place.

The Standard's Constantinople correspondent estimates that 2,000 men were killed in the fighting in the capital Saturday and that the losses were heaviest on the side of the Constitutionalist, who did all of the attacking.

Constantinople, Apr. 26.—With the surrender last night of the sultan's troops at the Yildiz garrison, the fierce fighting which had been going on between them and the Constitutionalist forces since Saturday, came to an end. The fight cost many lives and scores were wounded as the battle raged in the capital streets.

Sultan Abdul Hamid has been permitted to remain within the walls of the Yildiz Kiosk, where Saturday, in company with his ministers, he waited for the outcome of the struggle between his loyal troops and the army of investment, each hour bringing to him word of a fresh disaster.

It has been stated, since victory rested with the Constitutionalist, that the sultan himself gave orders to his men, not to resist. Whether this is true, it can be safely said of the troops within the capital that they put up a stubborn resistance at all points, and the losses on both sides are exceedingly heavy, for the length of time the battle was in progress.

Parliament to Decide Fate.
A representative of the commander-in-chief of the Constitutional forces is authority for saying that the sultan will be dealt with by the parliament and that there will be no adequate inquiry into the sultan's alleged complicity in the recent mutiny. Up to the present the ministry has not been dissolved, but Constantinople and a number of other places have been declared in a state of siege.

Martial law prevails, and while there is some uneasiness among the people, order has been maintained with a strict hand. The last garrison to surrender was the Selimieh artillery barracks, in Scutari, opposite Stamboul. Four thousand men stationed there with a hundred guns threatened to blow the city into ruins, but Gen. Scheffer ordered up 60 big guns and several batteries of machine guns to positions which commanded the barracks and the cruiser Modjeh steamed out of range of the field pieces and prepared for action.

Report 25,000 Massacred.
The situation in Asiatic Turkey is one of extreme gravity. How many thousands have been massacred cannot even be estimated, because the disturbances have been so widespread that it is impossible to secure details of the happenings during the past ten days. The latest estimates of the number killed in the vilayet of Adana reaches approximately 25,000, and thousands have been done to death in the towns of other districts. The state of siege which several of the places are undergoing, has brought the inhabitants to the verge of starvation, and each day brings its tales of further atrocities and the depths of misery and despair to which the savagery of the fanatics has brought the people.

American Property Destroyed.
Confirmation has been received of the burning of the Armenian village of Kessab. All the men and many women and children have been slain. The American property at Kessab was destroyed. Miss Chambers, an American missionary, is safe.

A British warship has been ordered from Alexandria to Suedia, where conditions have become worse. All the property of the Christians at Djebel Berket has been destroyed. The total loss is unknown, but it will be enormous. Reports state that Hadjin, in the vilayet of Adana, is on fire. There are five American women quartered there, including Miss Rose Lambert of Elkhart, Ind., who has been sending out appeals for help. Miss Virginia A. Billings and Miss Bowman. The authorities have refused permission to Messrs. Lawson and Chambers, also American missionaries, to go to their relief.

Reads Bible Twenty-Three Times.
Athens, N. Y., Apr. 26.—"I think I will stand on my record; I won't try to read it again," said Mrs. Sarah Hart, a woman 83 years old, as she closed her Bible after she had finished reading it through for the twenty-third time. Mrs. Hart believes that she has the record for Bible reading in this part of the country and that she is too old to try again.

Stewart's Body is Cremated.
Washington, Apr. 26.—The body of William M. Stewart, former United States senator from Nevada, who died here Friday, was cremated yesterday in accordance with a wish expressed just before his death. The ashes will be sealed in an urn and as soon as Mrs. Stewart recovers from an illness they will be taken to Bullfrog, Nev., for interment.

MINISTER DIES AT SERVICE.

Pastor Expires in Church While Baptizing a Baby.

Big Rapids, Mich., Apr. 26.—Rev. E. G. Frank, pastor of the German Lutheran church here, dropped dead Sunday while administering the rites of baptism to a child, at the close of the regular service. The preacher had apparently been in perfect health. As he stood at the altar, and without the slightest warning, he fell to the floor and was dead when picked up.

Rev. Mr. Frank was 67 years old and is survived by a widow and nine children. Before coming to Big Rapids he held pastorates at St. Joseph, Ill., and at Egg Harbor, N. J.

EIGHT DIE IN RIVER WRECK.

Sinking of Towboat Fatal to Members of the Crew.

New Orleans, Apr. 26.—Eight people were lost and seven others on board had a thrilling escape from death when the towboat Eagle of the Louisiana Petroleum Company went down early yesterday in the Mississippi river about forty miles south of New Orleans.

The dead are Capt. George Joyce, Second Engineer Charles Goodhue, Fireman Charles Martin, Mate Richard Le Blanc, two negro deckhands, a negro chambermaid and a cabin-boy. All the victims were asleep when the accident occurred.

WAR STARTED ON INCOME TAX

SENATORS DIVIDED IN OPINION
AS TO MINIMUM AMOUNT.

TAFT WANTS QUICK ACTION

Desires Haste in Passage of Tariff Bill and Regard Tax on Salaries as Necessary Only as an Emergency Act.

Washington, Apr. 26.—At the present time sentiment of the senate is pretty evenly divided for and against an income tax amendment to the pending tariff bill, but there are many differences of opinion among those favoring the idea as to the details of the legislation.

Some senators believe it is impracticable to tax incomes of less than $5,000, while others believe it will be necessary to go as low as $2,000.

There are others who argue that the fixing of a minimum at any figure will result in unfair discriminations and furthermore many of the champions of the proposition to tax incomes take the position that it will require time to work out a satisfactory plan to reach corporations.

Revenue Estimates Differ.
Added to all of these complications is the fact that estimates of possible revenues from a tax on incomes differ to such an extent that the whole idea is placed by many in the realm of experiment. Many members of congress believe with President Taft that the income tax amendment should not be adopted unless it can be shown that it is needed to produce revenues. Members of the finance committee declare that the Payne bill, as amended by the committee, will yield sufficient revenue for the operating expenses of the government. If the truth of this statement is established, it will turn a number of votes away from the income tax amendment unless the bill is materially amended so as to reduce the rates on necessities and likewise the revenues from imports on all such articles as to offset the collections that would be made upon incomes.

The trouble found with that suggestion is that it cannot be stated now how much would be derived from an income tax, even if the supporters of the idea could agree upon the form it shall take. On that account the work of the house ways and means committee and the senate finance committee would be lost in large part and the tariff bill would have to be entirely reconstructed, all of which would consume many weeks.

Business Demands Action.
Few of the most ardent supporters of the income tax proposition are willing to delay the adjournment of congress in the face of the attitude assumed by the president and the proposals that are pouring in upon congress from commercial centers against a prolonged discussion of the tariff. Informal conferences have been held within the past few days at which has been considered a plan to reduce the various income tax amendments to a separate bill to be considered after the tariff bill has been enacted. If this plan should be followed that action could not be had at the present session, but it has been suggested that as the bill would live through the entire congress a committee could be named to gather data concerning the possibilities of such a measure from a revenue point of view and submit this information at the next session. In the meantime tariff experts would be observing the operation of the new bill and ideas of just what is needed could be ascertained. Some decision upon this plan will be reached, in all probability, within the next fortnight.

PORTUGUESE QUAKES FATAL.

Many Are Killed and Injured by the Violent Shocks.

Lisbon, Apr. 26.—The seismic disturbances have now ceased throughout Portugal. Every one is greatly impressed with the courage and courage of King Manuel, who, after directing the firemen in the city when the first and most violent shock occurred on Friday, set out with physicians and supplies for the districts where the destruction was the greatest.

Several villages have been wiped out. Salvaterra and San Stefano were badly damaged. Thirty-nine bodies have been taken from the ruins and 120 persons are missing. Hundreds were injured. It is reported that two large fishing boats foundered and their crews, numbering 38, perished.

Parliament has voted $100,000 for the relief of the sufferers.

ART ARCHITECTURE AND THE FOREST AT THE ALASKA-YUKON-PACIFIC EXPOSITION.
(See story regarding the Alaskan Exposition.)

By WILLIAM H. RAYMOND.

Seattle, Apr. 26.—Although the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition will not open until June 1, it is practically completed at the present writing. During the last 30 days it has had an average attendance of 6,000, with the highest attendance in a single day reaching 17,000. Thus in spite of a charge of one-half price—25 cents—a considerable revenue will be received prior to the opening of the exposition from this source. If other exhibitions were ready on the opening day then the Seattle fair could have been opened this morning, for with the exception of the building up of two or three buildings and a general house cleaning everything is in readiness. The scores of acres of gardens and lawns are finished and furnish a strikingly impressionistic landscape. The gardens have been laid out in long, bold sweeps and the prime colors drawn upon most largely for effect. But the A.Y.P. exposition is no flower show—the blossoms are merely a riot against the main event. There is something big, but the full extent of its scope was not realized until the unveiling of the boxes actually commenced. There have been many promises made, but looking for the first time at the completed product it appears that every promise has been made good and there is a whole lot added that was not promised at all.

The early completion of the exposition is more remarkable when it is remembered that only two years ago, when the first spadeful of earth was turned up, the present site of the exposition was first a forest of Douglas fir. All these had to be removed. In addition to this there was not a level street on the whole grounds, the hills and cuts in some places being 35 feet in depth. Also there is to be taken into account that the cost of construction is averaging close to $2 per cubic foot, while the buildings of other expositions have cost no more than $1 per cubic foot. This is considering only these structures which follow the conventional exposition construction of plaster cast. The permanent buildings of reinforced concrete are a different matter. The government buildings were the last to be completed. The contracts under which the splendid structures were put up six April 20 as the last day, but the contractors beat it by a fortnight and they are now ready to receive exhibits.

The Hawaiian and Philippine buildings have been completed for some time. The Alaskan exhibits, with the exception of a few features which were delayed in the interior by the break-up of the winter trails, are all in place. The treasure department exhibit and displays were in place before the workmen had left the building. The life saving station on Lake Union is nearly ready for the equipment, which is awaiting it, and the big gun exhibit from the war department is parked around the tents of the Loyall Legion. Work on the model military encampment was completed early in April and awaits the detail from the regular army, which will be encamped there during the exposition. It is the last word in military arrangement of modern time equipment.

A most unusual and educational feature will be a small size Mississippi river, which will be turned loose at the head of the grounds and dumped into Lake Union at the other end. The idea is to show those who come to the fair how the "Father of Waters" will look after the deep waterway is dredged from the lakes to the Gulf. It is to be a reproduction, very much in miniature, of the Aurora borealis and the country behind it. The Congressmen from Louisiana are one of the promoters of the idea and the rest of the crowd come from along the river between New Orleans and the drainage canal.

The cascades is, of course the central feature of the grounds. Since April 1 it has frequently been put into play for the entertainment of the pre-exposition crowds. The daily flock to the ground, by light, with all of its battery of submerged lights in full play, the 10-cent concert after the big show, and the Geyser basin, with its iridescent jets of water lifting 150 feet in the air, makes an able auxiliary.

On the banks which climb from the level of the Cascades and Basin to the level of the main court, 50,000 rose bushes are making ready rapidly to add their blossoms to the picture and from the huge masses which punctuate the ornamental balustrades around the central blooming vines already hang like draperies.

The government buildings, centering in the dome, make the heart of the court. It is flanked on the one by the Hawaiian and Alaskan building and these by the foreign and orient exhibit buildings, which complete a semicircle. On each side of the court, below the foreign and orient buildings, are the Manufactures and Agriculture buildings, splendid structures, with their colonnades and other climbing vines. These last four structures were completed six months ago.

The lower or southern end of the main court is open to a magnificent vista which has its end 70 miles away in the towering, snow-capped bulk of Mt. Rainier. It is a magnificent picture, set in a frame of graceful, giant firs. Such is its splendor, that the exposition was laid out with solo re-

The Lace Nets and All-Over Embroideries

Have been cut into at a lively rate. Such high qualities of lace nets and all-over embroideries have never before been offered to women of Southern Wisconsin or any other part of the country. It is a very rare chance indeed that a merchant has presented to him an opportunity to buy goods at prices that will admit of being offered to the public at figures so ridiculously low. To say that the offerings are unusual is putting it mildly.

The Lace Nets at 48c

include Brussels, French Fillet, and round threads, assorted dots and figures, colors or white, ivory, butter and ecru, also octagonal dress nets in Wisteria, green, taupe, tobacco and light blue. The above nets are all 40 inches wide.

The 98c All-Over Embroideries are on a fine Swiss cloth, and consist of beautiful bold open work patterns, in large flower and striped designs, especially desirable for fancy waists.

The Nets at 68c

are finer than the first mentioned, and the styles entirely different, very desirable patterns, 40 inches wide, ivory, butter and ecru. Actual values $1 to $2 per yd. Any woman will realize it when she sees them.

The $1.19 All-Over Embroideries consist mostly of fine, dainty work on Swiss cloth, something that are always good in any household, never go out of style.

The above all-over embroideries are really worth $1.50 to $2.50 per yard. They are all the regulation 20-inch width. Buy all you can use of the above while you have the opportunity, as we can get no more of them to sell at this price.

CAPITAL AND LABOR

It is gratifying to know that out of the depression of the past eighteen months has come a better understanding between capital and labor, and that conciliation has largely taken the place of the strike and boycott.

Employers have been slow to reduce wage scales, preferring to economize by weeding out undesirable employees and time-wasters. This process has removed from the ranks of labor the agitator and walking delegate, to great extent, and the manufacturing industries today are manned by a class of intelligent workmen, susceptible to reason, and appreciative of struggle which employees have had to keep out of bankruptcy.

In many lines of business it has become necessary to reduce wages to meet the demands of long continued depression, but this has been done without disturbance. The Wall Street Journal, in reviewing the situation, says:

"There is one fact incidental to the general industrial depression of the last eighteen months which is especially encouraging. That is the temperate, understanding attitude of organized labor with regard to the downward readjustment of wages which business conditions admittedly require. In a large number of productive enterprises the wage reduction has already been proposed and accepted, in a way which shows that the workmen clearly understand the adverse trade influences which make it necessary.

"In other great industrial interests in which reduced wages seem inevitable, it is production is to continue, there is not only little or no likelihood of strikes, but a manifest disposition to accept the reduced pay rate as a business necessity for which employers are in no way to blame.

"This conciliatory spirit between employer and employee is one of the real compensations of the severe depression through which our great business interests are now passing. It does not mean a sympathetic understanding between those who buy labor and those who sell it which affords the assurance of a more harmonious co-operation for their mutual benefit when productive industry shall have regained its normal activity.

"Not necessarily as a matter of altruism, but simply as a measure of hard-headed business policy, the employees of a great business organization who stand by their employers in times of depression, like the present, should be properly remembered and taken care of when prosperity returns. Trade conditions of today are serving as a trying out-process to separate the fit from the underserving. Lessened profits on production and reduced wages for labor are twin hardships for all creative enterprise, but their inevitable and beneficent result will be to establish a firmer and kinder understanding between the two vital elements of our industrial life.

"From this point of view the rational conservation of labor interests with respect to the wage question in the present emergency is worthy of the highest praise."

A TARIFF COMMISSION

The Manufacturers' association, representing practically all the large manufacturers of the country, met in convention at Indianapolis in February and appointed a committee of 100 to promote a permanent tariff commission. This committee, through its executive board, has just issued the following statement:

"The light for a permanent body of tariff investigators has finally narrowed down to the question of form. That some sort of commission will be created during the present session of congress is settled. Senator Aldrich is now quoted as having told his colleagues on the finance committee and others that he favors a plan to establish a body of investigators, and his colleagues are entirely willing to leave the matter to him.

"The sole remaining question is the kind of board. The friends and advocates of a commission, including the two hundred prominent business associations which sent delegates to the Indianapolis tariff commission convention, consider the light only half won. They appreciate the step forward made in gaining even an acknowledgment of the need of a board of investigators, but they insist that a make-shift board will not answer and must not be accepted.

"The tariff bureau plan originated by Senator Aldrich is by no means acceptable to the advocates of tariff reform. It is now generally known that he wishes to limit the concession to the creation of a bureau made up of representatives from the Bureau of Foreign Relations, of the State Department, the Bureau of Customs from the Treasury department, and the Bureau of Manufacturers and of Statistics from the Department of Commerce and Labor. This joint bureau will have no power save to secure information for the president to utilize in the application of the maximum and minimum policy and to be on hand in case congress desires tariff enlightenment.

"This is a far cry from the plans of the commission advocates. They believe in a scientific, protective tariff, one based upon the difference between the cost of production at home and the cost abroad. Such a tariff must, in the nature of things, be a matter of expert and painstaking investigation and statistics involving constant adaptation to meet the shifting conditions of industrial life.

"A tariff bureau made up of governmental employees such as Senator Aldrich proposes, will not be able to pass upon costs of production. Experience in manufacturing is absolutely necessary, and at least one or two members of any board must have practical knowledge.

"There is only one right solution of the American tariff problem—the formation of a permanent tribunal of men equipped with expert knowledge of American industries, yet bound to no special interest; men of prominence and character such as will command the confidence of the people, yet dependent in no way for their livelihood or standing upon political leaders.

"Congress is reluctant to yield any of its prerogatives to a board composed of men who are not in government employ, and so favor the plan of appointing a commission composed of the heads of departments. This would be a burlesque.

Senator La Follette has a good deal to say, in the last issue of his magazine, about the special interests being represented in Washington, on the tariff issue, and then deplores the fact that the consumers, the people, are not represented. The notion has prevailed, for a long time, that the lower house of congress in some way belonged to the people, and that the men elected are servants of the people. If this is the case, there ought to be about 400 men in Washington devoting their time to the people's interests.

The large boot and shoe manufacturers of the west left Chicago for Washington by special train this morning, to protest against the 15 per cent duty on hides. They claim that the tanners are rapidly gaining control of the leather business and practically own half the tanneries of the country today and that the beef trust is rapidly assuming the threatening magnitude of the tobacco trust.

The New York banks are carrying $85,000,000 more of cash in their reserves than a year ago, and the great banks of Europe held $300,000,000 more gold than at this time last year, according to a recent financial New York letter. Money is available for all legitimate enterprises, and when the tariff question is settled business will assume normal conditions.

Some men, actuated by a spirit of retaliation, have introduced in the assembly a bill which prohibits shooting ducks for three years in the state. This nonsensical measure should be promptly voted down by the legislature, as it does nothing to help.

A tariff which places the cost of production on a par with foreign competition will protect American trade and increase the revenue. This is what the party is pledged to do, and when it is done the revenue will take care of itself.

Heart to Heart Talks.

LUTHER BURBANK, BENEFACTOR.

Ever hear of incorporating a man? That is what they have done with Luther Burbank, the plant wizard—incorporated him into the Luther Burbank Products company.

They say corporations have no soul, but this corporation certainly has a soul—the soul of Luther Burbank.

Twenty-five years ago Mr. Burbank came into public notice by his production of the potato which bears his name. In the years since he has wrought wonders in the perfection of plant life by his crossbreeding.

He has produced a plum with the taste and texture of a Bartlett pear. He has eliminated the thorn from many varieties of fruit and has produced a spineless cactus. There is scarcely a vegetable or fruit or flower on which he has not made improvements.

Of all these "the dehorning of the cactus" is believed to be his greatest accomplishment.

It is this latter feat in hybridization that has excited the interest of capitalists and led to the incorporation of the company. They can easily see "millions in it."

Already Mr. Burbank has developed several varieties of spineless cactus, some of the new varieties having the flavor of the cantaloupe and of the peach.

The possibilities of this plant of the plains, now practically useless and a lumber of the ground, are amazing. Mr. Burbank will turn the cactus into fodder for cattle and will thus produce a fodder that will yield three or four times as much as the tame grasses.

That will literally make the desert blossom as the rose.

No wonder moneyed men want to put Mr. Burbank on a commercial basis.

Like Edison, his mind is worth millions.

But—While the men of the markets see the possibilities of wealth in the wonder working mind of Luther Burbank the lover of his kind sees more.

He sees in the future days myriad rooftops where now there are none, cheaper food for the people, a race more blooming and beautiful, a more content, leisure for the higher things—not the millennium, but the preparation for the millennium.

All because of the gray matter in a big man's BRAIN PAN.

under the beard. His father is a man of much wealth, and is much interested in the mission work. Besides Daniel Minor Rogers, his son, he has another child, a daughter, Gertrude, who is in the mission field in Turkey. The girl is stationed at Van, in the eastern part of Turkey, while the young man was in Central Turkey.

So earnest for the missionary work is the father of Gertrude and Minor Rogers that he paid out of his own pocket the expense of his children in the mission field and also paid their monthly salaries. Minor had been married only a little over a year. His wife is the daughter of the missionary, Mr. Christie, mentioned in the cables as being saved at Tarsus. Minor and his wife met in college, where they were both studying to become missionaries. They have a little baby that is not more than a month old. Minor is but 27 years old. He is a graduate of Princeton college and of Harvard university.

FOUND DEAD IN POOL OF BLOOD

DANIEL SCHAEFER PASSED AWAY WITH NO ONE NEAR.

AT HOME ON WALNUT STREET

Gruesome Discovery Made by Harry Butler Last Evening at First Seemed to Point to Suicide or Murder.

Alone in his home at 603 S. Walnut St., Daniel Schaefer, aged 61, was seized with a pulmonary hemorrhage about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and after covering the floor of the room with his life blood, dragged himself to his bed, where he was found dead by neighbors nearly four hours later. Harry Butler, who entered the house immediately after supper for the purpose of visiting Schaefer, saw a stream of blood flowing from under the bedroom door and fearing foul play, notified the police who arrived on the scene at 7 o'clock and made an investigation. They found the door man lying on the bed, while the floor of the room was almost completely covered with a pool of blood. Schaefer's coat sleeves up to the elbows were soaked with blood and foot marks leading from the corner of the room to the bedside showed that the unfortunate man, after lying on the floor where he had coughed away his life, staggered to the bed where he died. Dr. G. W. Field, who was summoned to make an investigation, gave it as his opinion that a pulmonary hemorrhage was the cause of Schaefer's death.

The dead man, who came here from Whitewater, Wis., was a sober and industrious workman, and had been employed in various capacities since his arrival here, his last position being as watchman at the Institute for the Blind. Since he resigned his position there early in the winter, he has been without work and in somewhat straitened circumstances. He was of a sensitive nature, however, and refused to accept any offers of aid. At various times he had complained of pains in his chest and lately had been unable to talk above a whisper. He had also expressed the premonition that he had not long to live.

After a thorough examination, which disclosed any suspicious of foul play, Schaefer's remains were taken to Ryan's undertaking rooms where they await the coming of his family. He is survived by five children, two sons and three daughters.

Town Talk

Perhaps the mother's thoughts still lingered in fond reverie with those wonderful window exhibits of mannequins over gray tulle, or the ornate new clothes-baskets, head-gear shown at the millinery shops. Anyhow the left front wheel on baby's go-cart slipped off, all unnoticed, and no one was the wiser until the carriage and little passenger were back on the main veranda of home. There is a moral connected with this little incident of the crippled and faithful perambulator that too easily maintained its equilibrium and gave no sign, and it is not concerned with fancy bonnets. The mother knew that no matter how large and no matter how small, be they cart-wheels, cut-glass or collar-buttons, the Gazette Want Ad columns are the one best bet. In due course of time and as per advertisement the missing disk was returned to her on Saturday last.

COUNCIL CAN WORK IF IT SO DESIRES

Three Measures of Great Importance Are Now Ready for Final Consideration.

At the first regular meeting of the new council tonight it is probable that three measures of importance which have been held over will come up for a third reading and passage. The most important of these measures is the one granting a franchise to the Cincinnati Construction Co. for an interurban road through the city. The second is an ordinance providing for the inspection of all cows whose milk is sold in Janesville. The third is the measure providing for the elimination of the office of assistant street commissioner. The bonds provided by the newly appointed city officials will also be accepted. Dr. S. B. Nickmaster as health officer and C. K. Millmore as assessor in the Fourth ward were the only newly elected officers who had filed their bonds this morning.</

BRITISH LORD'S BROTHER
LEAPS TO DEATH IN SEAHon. Ronald Ramsay Disappointed in Love for American Girl,
Commits Suicide.

Plymouth, Eng., Apr. 26.—Hon. Ronald Ramsay, brother of the Earl Dalhousie, committed suicide by leaping into the sea from the Hamburg-American liner Cleveland on its voyage to this port.

Young Ramsay, who, it is said, had an unfortunate love affair with an American girl, was rather depressed during the voyage. Last Friday night, just before the captain's ball, he jumped overboard.

Efforts were made to find him, but in vain. He left the following letter addressed to his uncle, Hon. Charles Ramsay, who married Marthe, daughter of the late W. B. Garrison of New York, and who is highly popular and respected on both sides of the Atlantic:

"Dear Uncle: Am feeling rather queer, but must just write and say good-by. You looked after us boys so well, I wanted to be a credit to you so much, but have not been able to keep bad thoughts out of my head lately. I have not made a will, but suppose my things will be divided among my brothers. I should have liked to have seen them again. Give my love to Max, and I hope he will be all right and fairly happy."

"Your affectionate Ronny."
He was the third brother of Lord Dalhousie. Their father and mother met a tragic death 22 years ago when they went on a voyage to New York for the benefit of the earl's health. Landing at Havre on their return, the countess died after a day's illness of blood poisoning. The following morning the earl also was found dead of heart failure.

The countess was one of the most beautiful women of her time and her husband was unusually respected in England. Charles Ramsay acted as guardian to the four children. He is now in Saskatchewan.

Sunken Vessel Is Found.

Cleveland, O., Apr. 26.—The sunken hull of the fishing tug George A. Floss, which disappeared with a crew of seven men aboard during a storm on Lake Erie April 7, has been located. It was found in 60 feet of water about seven miles directly north of the Cleveland harbor. None of the bodies of the crew has been located.

Kills Rival; Wounds Widow.

Battle Creek, Mich., Apr. 26.—A. J. Mullen Santurday shot and fatally wounded Floyd Keitchin and tried to kill Mrs. Mary Fredsburg, proprietor of the boarding house where the men lived. Both had been paying attention to the widowed Mrs. Fredsburg.

PORTERS IN ROOSEVELT'S CAMP HAVE SMALLPOX

Former President Periled by Disease—Enjoys One Day's Hunt, Then Moves.

Nairobi, British East Africa, Apr. 26.—The members of the Roosevelt hunting party are threatened by smallpox of the most virulent type.

Although neither the former president, Kermit Roosevelt nor any of the naturalists in the party have been seized with the dreaded malady, two of the porters developed symptoms at Taptiti.

The danger of any of the party having become infected is declared slight, but everything is being done to prevent illness interfering with the pleasures of the chase.

On account of the porters' sickness the camp on the Taptiti plains was broken Saturday night and the expedition began its march to the ranch of Sir Alfred Penae, on the Athi river.

Col. Roosevelt spent part of Saturday afternoon sorting his kit, while Kermit and several of the men went to try their luck with the rifles. An old settler, who seemed to take a liking to Kermit, offered to show him a likely place for good sport. They succeeded in bringing down one buck.

Col. Roosevelt's first hunt was favored by fine weather and he enjoyed the experience immensely. He bagged two wildebeests and a Thompson's gazelle. In one respect Mr. Roosevelt was somewhat disappointed, as he had been anxious to secure a Grant's gazelle, whose massive horns are much sought after for trophies. The hunt lasted several hours and all the members of the party were well tired out when they returned to camp.

The police still maintain their measures for the protection of the Americans from annoyance. They will not permit any except those designated by Col. Roosevelt to go with the expedition. It has now been definitely learned that none of Mr. Roosevelt's baggage is missing and that nothing has been stolen. Game is numerous in the plains.

MIKADO'S CRUISERS IN PORT.

Two Anchored at San Pedro, Cal. Were Russian Ships.

Los Angeles, Cal., Apr. 26.—For the first time in ten years warships of Japan entered a Pacific coast port of the United States when the cruisers Soya and Aso, comprising the Japanese training squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral H. Uchida, steamed into San Pedro yesterday.

The Aso and Soya are on a peaceful visit of some weeks' duration, which will take them to all of the principal ports of the Pacific coast. The two ships are prizes of the Russo-Japanese war. The Aso is the former Russian cruiser Iwano, found in the harbor of Port Arthur after Gen. Stosovet's surrender. The Soya was formerly the cruiser Varieg, which was captured in the harbor of Chemulpo. They are comparatively modern war ships, carrying heavy batteries and equipped with high-speed engines.

NIAGARA ICE JAM BREAKS.

Current Carries Huge Barges from Channel Along Shores.

Youngstown, N. Y., Apr. 26.—A bustling northwest gale, followed by an even more energetic southwest gale, cleared the Canadian channel at the mouth of the Niagara river, broadened the passage torn out by dynamite along the American shore of the stream and so viciously ripped away the lower end of the ice pack that it is now possible to cross the river in a boat by a straight course from the fort to Niagara-on-the-Lake.

The engineers did not work yesterday, and, judging by the rate at which the outbound currents are dragging monster mounds of ice from the main mass of the jam, there will be little need to-day for them to explode the ton of dynamite stored in the fort's magazine.

BOY SLAIN BY ITALIAN.

Murderer Hurried Away to Prevent Lynching by Mob.

Beatrice, Neb., Apr. 26.—Clyde Price, stepson of Frank Walsner, 11 years old, shot at Wynore, Saturday by Bertruel, an Italian railroad laborer, died yesterday without regaining consciousness. Bertruel, who was threatened by a mob was rescued by Sheriff Trade and brought to Beatrice, where he is now in the county jail under guard.

After he had been taken away, the angry crowd of 400 Wynore men attacked the Italian railroad camp and after a lively scrimmage drove the foreigners from the town, warning them not to return. The crowd then set fire to the bank cars occupied by the laborers and they were burned with the belongings of the Italians.

Age and Experience.
Bacon: As we grow less young, the aged grow less old.

A picture just taken of James J. Jeffries, the undefeated heavyweight champion of the world, which proves conclusively that he is not in such bad physical shape as many have supposed. Under his constant training his muscles are hardening and while he falls to state he is going to fight the present title holder, it is confidently expected sooner or later he will be drawn into the fray unless some of the many aspirants, including Ketchel, Kaufman and Corbett, could put Johnson out of business.

CHURCH WRECKED BY BOMB.

Attempt Made to Destroy Cathedral in New Orleans.

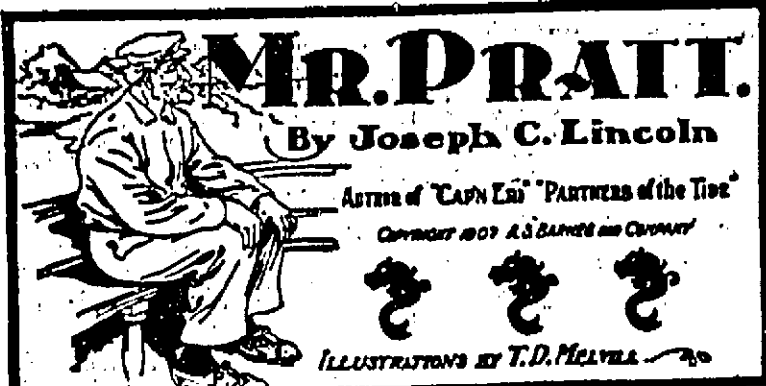

New Orleans, Apr. 26.—The famous old St. Louis cathedral, in Chartres street, was shaken yesterday afternoon by an explosion believed to have resulted from the placing of a bomb in the south tower of the building.

The explosion, heard for many blocks, and creating wild excitement in that section of the city, occurred at about 2:30 o'clock, when the church was practically empty of worshippers. A priest, a woman and a child were the only occupants of the building at the time and none was injured. The damage amounts to about $2,000.

A riot culminated at once in the first precinct police station and several scores of detectives and policemen were hurried to the scene. Several arrests followed.

The police expressed the belief that dissensions among some of a party of Italian workmen engaged in making repairs in the south tower of the church was responsible for the explosion.

We could hear him. He wasn't in a box at all, as he'd ought to have been

We Moved Off Stately and Slow, Like an Ocean Liner Leaving Her Dock.

According to contract, but setting in the sand with his blind legs tied together with string. He was whirling in circles with his tail for a pivot, so to speak, and he seemed to be mainly equal. Little he was, and thin, and "pooped" to me to be thin as a stick of human kindness—but the Heaven-Hos fell down and worshiped him like he was a hog angel.

"Humph!" says I. "Is that the dear?"

"That's the dear," says Van, patting him at long distance.

Well, he weighed four pound and cost six dollars, so that's dear enough for anybody.

I loaded the critters into the skiff—the pig fairly sung psalms while I was doing it—and then the Twins climbed aboard.

"All right, skipper," says Van. "Shove off."

"Just a minute," says I. "What am I going to do—take the next train? This transport seems to be pretty well loaded."

It was. Van Brunt was on the amidships thwart. Hartley was up in the bow, with the pig between his knees. The chicken coop was piled in the stern. I ain't no dime show dwarf, and where I was going to show myself was too much for me.

"Humph!" says Van. "It does look standing room only. Horo, skipper; you kneel on the back seat. I'll row."

I didn't exactly kneel, but I straddled across the stern somehow, with the butt end of the hen roost in my lap and my feet over each rail just clear of the wet.

Nate's boy shoved us into deep water. He had to take off his shoes and stockings to do it, and he was laughing so that he made mighty poor headway.

"You pesky young ones!" says I, losing my patience. "If you don't tend to your job I'll get out and duck you. What are you giggling at?"

"I ain't giggling," says he. "I'm pushing. Ugh! Haw! haw! Ugh!"

DOCTOR
OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Paw Paw, Mich.

"I suffered terribly from female troubles, including inflammation and consumption, for several years. My doctor said there was no hope for me but an operation. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."

EMMA DRAPEL.

Another Operation Avoided. Chicago, Ill.—"I want women to know what that wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has done for me. Two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation, and I never thought of seeing a well day again. I had a small tumor and female troubles so that I suffered day and night. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."

LYDIA E. PINKHAM, 11 Langdon St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female troubles, including inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregular periods, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

There you be!"

He gave us a final shove and then went back and rolled around in the bushes. Somebody was having a good time if we wasn't.

We moved off stately and slow, like an ocean liner leaving her dock. We didn't have any band, but the pig and hens furnished music. The skiff's rail was almost a wash and my heels dipped on every little wave.

Van rowed like a good one till he got about two-thirds of the way across. Then the tide got a grip on us and he commenced to go slower and groun. He'd missed a stroke and we'd swing half way around. We was going broadside on most of the time.

By and by Hartley spoke up.

"What makes this pig kick so?" says he, like 'twas some kind of a conundrum. The critter seemed to be doing his best, to answer it, but his language wasn't understandable.

"You look out he don't kick that string off his legs," I holler. I had to holler to make myself heard above the choir.

He bent forward and looked down. "Why?" says he. "I'll be shot if he hasn't done it already."

"Hang on to him then!" I yells. "For the land sakes don't let him loose."

Van Brunt gives a final groan and stops the oars.

"No use, skipper," he says. "My cucumber recreation has put me out of the race. I wouldn't put another stroke for the control of the Standard Oil. You'll have to be shofor the rest of the way."

"I didn't know what a 'shofer' was and I don't know now; but I could see trouble coming."

"Set where you be!" I shouted. "Don't move. Thunders! I should you go!"

The pesky idiot had stood up to stretch, leaving the oars in the rowlocks. Course the skiff swung broadside on and a wave knocked the starboard overboard. Hartley see it going and made a jump and a grab. He missed it, you might know, but he let go of the pig.

I dove for a lively kind of speech and ripped out the port oar. The hen coop was in my way and it and me went headfirst into Van Brunt's shirt-front. When I got out of the mix-up, both oars was ten yards astern, the pig was doing three laps a minute over us and under the thwart and the hens was all out of jail and proud of it. Likewise we was drifting out to sea.

"Well!" says I. "This is nice, ain't it? Get out, you varmint!" This last part was to a pullet that was flapping on my shoulders.

Would you believe it, all them Heavenly loons done was to laugh. They just roared.

"Hol hol!" whoops Hartley. "Oh, dear me! This is worth the price of admission."

"Hal hal!" chuckles Van, puffing for breath, and shoving the pig out of his lap. "This is the best over! The floating garden of Eden! Or the ark! Say, Martin; I begin to sympathize with Noah."

"Noah sent out a dove, if I remember right," says Hartley. "Wonder if it would work with a chicken? Where was our Ararat, skipper?"

I was mad clean through. Here was twice that I'd been made a fool of and salt water. I wa'n't used to it and it hurt.

"The ark was afloat for 40 odd days; you want to remember that," says I. "And this skiff won't float 40 minutes, landed the way she is, if she drifts outside that point."

"Then she mustn't drift there," says Van, cheerful. "I don't want to get wet—not now, with James gone. This is the only presentable suit I've got left. If it is wrecked you'll have to press it, Sol."

My, but I was hopping! Talking about pressing clothes and us next door to going to the bottom!

"I'll press nothing," says I. "And I'll say right now, Mr. Van Brunt, that I won't tend to them gardens. You hear?"

Van waved his hand. "Your salary from now on," he says, "will be—"

"No, no," he says. "My salary's big enough. It's me that's short—short about 26 hours' out of the 24. If I was two men I might do what's needed, but as it is I can't. I like you both first-rate—when you ain't too crazy—but either you'll have to get me a helper, or I'll have to quit. That is, if we get out of this mess alive, which ain't likely."

All the time I was preaching this way I was tugging at the "midships" thwart. Finally I got it loose and shoved it over the stern. I was going to try to scull with it.

The Heavenlies was completely upset. Not by the fear of drowning—drat 'em. I don't callate they was afraid of anything—but any talk of quitting seemed to knock 'em silly.

"By Jove you know," says Van.

"This is serious, skipper. [You can't mean it.]"

"You bet I can!" I says, scowling like all possessed with one arm and fighting pullets with the other.

"You're not going," says Van, decided. "You're going—now, is he, Martin?"

"I should say not," says 'Other Twin. "Sol, if you want more money—or assistants—or anything, why, all right."

But we want you. And we're going to keep you.

"That's settled then," says Van, quick. "What kind of help do you want—and how many?"

"Well," I says, cooling down a mite—of course I was pleased to find they liked me so well. "Well," I says, "if you could get somebody to cook and help 'round the house may be I—"

"A cook?" says Van. "Good! We get a cook—two cooks—ten of 'em, if you say so. And we get 'em quick."

"Let's get ashore first," says I. "I've got to make the point there or we'll get—"

"Our finish, hey?" he says, ending the sentence for me. "All right; make the point." Then he got out a cigar and went to smoking.

But I wa'n't by no means sure we could make the point. 'Twas the eastward end of Ozona Island I was aiming for. The tide set in strong there and I could see that the skiff would pretty nigh hit the beach, if I had luck.

We zig-zagged along. Pretty soon we got to where the waves was running higher. They commenced to slop into the boat.

"She'll go under, sure's your horn," says I. "If I can only keep her up till we get into shoal water."

"I seem to have acquired the cast-away habit," says Van. "Once in that other boat of yours, Sol, and now in this one. I must swear off. This is getting monotonous."

The swell run bigger as we neared the point. The skiff was half full and the slopping and the motion stirred up the menagerie. Sniffing, squealing and squawking and flapping, you never heard nor saw. Them hens was all over us and the pig underneath.

We riz on a wave and began to capsize.

"Here we go!" I yelled. "Stand by!"

Over us went. The hens had the best of us in a way—they could fly after a fashion. I wished I could. Lucky the water wa'n't more than waist deep.

I plowed through the sand and undertow and got to the beach. Hartley come next, totting the pig by one leg. The "dear" wriggled loose and headed for the pines, hurrahing like a sawmill. The most of the hens had gone on ahead.

"Humph!" says somebody. "You're pretty wet, ain't you?"

I rubbed the wet sand out of my eyes. There on a sand hummock in front of us was a girl. A queer-looking female she was, too. Reminded me some of Hannah Jane Parvles, being built on the same spare lines and having the same general look of being all corners. She had on a striped calico dress, stripes running up and down, and her belt went across the middle of the stripes as straight as if 'twas laid out with a spirit level. I couldn't see her face good, for she had on a sun-bonnet and 'twas like peeking at her through a nail keg, but she had snapping black eyes and moved quick, which wa'n't Hannah Jane's way by a good sight. I stood and stared at her.

"I say you're pretty wet, ain't you?" she says again, louder. "Why don't you say something? Got you hard of hearing?"

Before I could get my bearings enough to answer Van Brunt comes dripping alongside. He was still holding the cigar stump in his mouth and he had one of the Plymouth Rocks—the rooster, as it happened—squeezed tight under one arm.

"Well, skipper," he says, "the Ark has stranded and the animals may now—"

"Hello! What? Who?"

He looked at the girl and she at him. Then he says brisk:

"Can you cook?"
